I was blind when going on and my patience drew thin because the book didn't tell me enough in the beginning for me to enjoy the book at my pace. I was hooked from the first chapter, wanting to know how Celaine was going to cope with her new life, away from her friends and the wonderful man in her life. When Celaine is a child her family are killed in a terrorist explosion in a shopping mall. This was an excellent book. No Mercy. It's a book worth reading. Monsterland by Michael Okon. Is he working for the President who likes to hide out in a bunker away from all his trouble? She still has a lot of issues with what happened with her family. Also because of this vulnerability it justified her actions, which created a solid and strong story line.
